Blast shatters ITT office in downtown Beirut today

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An ITT office was shattered by an explosion in downtown Beirut today, but no casualties were reported.

South of the capital, a Christian village and a Moslem village traded rockets and mortar fire, killing one man.

The fighting broke out Friday night after four bodyguards of aides to right-wing Christian leader Camille Chamoun were kidnapped.

Armed men in the Christian community of Damour, 15 miles south of Beirut, gave the abductors in the town of Heret a mile away until 1 a.m. to free the captives and their jeep. The four were released without weapons or the jeep.

Both sides threw up roadblocks and searched cars on the coast road to Sidon and Tyre, the main cities on the southern Lebanese coast.

National security police were dispatched to restore calm.

Fighting continued early today, authoritative sources said. A Damour merchant was killed by a rocket that exploded in his grocery store, police reported.

Calm returned to Beirut following street clashes and sniping on Thursday night.

More than 130 persons have been killed in 11 days of clashes between Palestinian guerrillas and a 6,000-man militia of the Christian-dominated Phalange party.

In Cairo, three Moslems found guilty of trying to overthrow Egypt's President Anwar Sadat were sentenced to death. The court sentenced 29 others to terms ranging from five years to life. It acquitted 60.

Those sentenced to death were Saleh Abdullah Sarreya, 37, a Palestinian and a former employee of the Arab League; Talal Ansari, 22, an engineering student at Alexandria University; and Karam Izzat Anadoli, 22, a student at the Technical Military Academy.

Eleven persons including five soldiers were killed in April 1974 in the raid by students and others on the military academy. The demonstrators sought weapons to use in a march on the Arab Socialist Union where Sadat was making a speech. The prosecutor said they wanted to topple Sadat and turn Egypt into a strict Islamic state.

MADRID, Spain (AP) — President Ford and Spain's aging leader, Gen. Francisco Franco, moved in an almost regal motorcade through tens of thousands of waving Spaniards in downtown Madrid today, then met with their foreign ministers at El Pardo Palace to discuss continuation of American military bases in Spain.

The talks lasted 40 minutes, but no details were given.

Security was the tightest in Spanish history as the President arrived at Barajas Airport from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization gathering in Brussels.

Six army battalions stood guard as Ford rode in a motorcade with Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the 82-year-old Spanish chief of state, who met the President at the airport.

Ford told Franco that Spain "has a place in the transatlantic community" and could be proud of its contribution to western European defense. He said: "For more than 20 years Spain has shared with America and with Europe the burdens of promoting the prosperity and security of the Atlantic and Mediterranean regions."

Francisco welcomed Ford and said he expected bilateral cooperation to continue.

The President accepted a key to Madrid saying it represented the opening of new doors to cooperation between Spain and the United States.

At the airport, Mrs. Franco greeted the American First Lady.

Smiling broadly in bright sunshine, Ford was on his feet for the mile-long drive and waved back to the crowd, sometimes 10-deep and strictly contained by soldiers. Franco, seated, touched the visor of his cap lamely with his fingertips at regular intervals.

A score of helmeted horsemen preceded Ford's open-topped black Rolls-Royce as it moved from Cibeles Plaza, where the President was given symbolic keys to the city by Mayor Miguel Angel Garcia-Lomas.

Franco sat on Ford's left, and piped martial music blared from loudspeakers along Jose Antonio Avenue, named for the founder of the extreme right Falangist party.

The 82-year-old generalissimo told Ford on his arrival from a NATO summit in Brussels that he expected Ford's visit "will have a positive result in strengthening" U.S.-Spanish relations.

Ford, pressing hard to at least retain a strategic nuclear submarine base at Rota, courted Franco with a declaration that Spain "has a place in the transatlantic alliance."

Actually, Ford himself said Friday in Brussels that there is little likelihood, now or in the near future, that NATO would accept direct bonds with Spain. Still, Ford will sound this theme repeatedly throughout his one-day stay to demonstrate Spain's role in Western defense.

Spitting negotiations with the United States for renewal of the 22-year-old base agreement are due to resume early next month, and Spain is seeking larger recognition from all the allies.

Scott nixes run for governor post

CHICAGO (AP) — Atty. Gen. William Scott has ended speculation that he would run for the Illinois governorship by announcing his candidacy for reelection to his present post.

"It is essential that I continue to do the job as the lawyer for the people of this state," said Scott, a Republican foe of Democratic Gov. Daniel Walker.

Scott told a news conference he will make a formal announcement of his re-election plans at a later date. He did not rule out the possibility of seeking higher office after 1976. The attorney general said his office is involved in tough legal battles that "will determine the quality of life in the future." He listed several major lawsuits including civil proceedings against Inland Steel, General Motors and Equity Funding.

"I am saying to the pollsters and price-fixers that I will be attorney general for the next 18 months and will remain as attorney general if I'm re-elected," he said.

Scott declined comment when asked if he discussed his plans with Donald Rumsfeld, an advisor to President Ford who has been mentioned as a possible opponent of Walker.

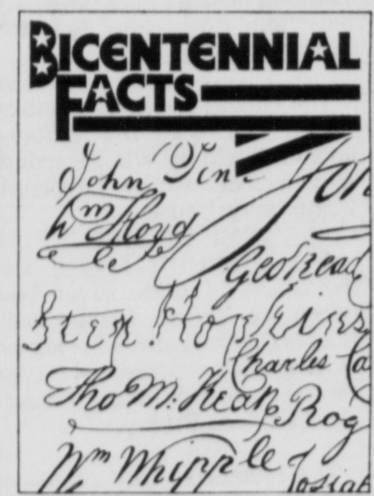

He also declined comment when asked whom he would support for the Republican nomination.

Peoria Mayor Richard Carver commented that Scott's decision "leaves the field wide open as to who's going to be the governor candidate.

"Obviously," he added, "only time will tell who that will turn out to be — whether it's me or anyone else."

Also mentioned has been U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson.

Stephen Hopkins, the eldest signer of the Declaration of Independence next to Benjamin Franklin, is remembered for his tremulous signature. Aged 69 and afflicted with palsy, according to tradition he declared, "My hand trembles but my heart does not!" Hopkins subsequently served on the committees that prepared the Articles of Confederation and created the Continental Navy. The World Almanac notes.

Janice I. Ludwick, 25, rural Mt. Morris, was killed in a one-car traffic accident south of Dixon early this morning. Ludwick was southbound on Pump Factory Road, approaching a left curve just before the intersection with U.S. 30. Her car left the road, on the right side, traveled 225 feet and slammed into a tree. The accident occurred shortly after 1 a.m. Ludwick was pronounced dead at the scene by Richard Schilling, Deputy Lee County Coroner. An inquest will be held pending further investigation. Her body was taken to Jones Funeral Home by the Dixon Rural Fire Department emergency vehicle.

Crash kills Oregon couple

OREGON — A rural Oregon couple was killed and three other persons were hospitalized late Friday night, following a three-car collision on Ill. 64, one mile east of Mt. Morris.

Dead is William P. Ballard, 48, Rt. 3, and his wife, Shirley Ballard, 42. Listed in poor condition at Rockford Memorial Hospital is the couple's daughter, Barbara, 15. Reported in fair condition at KSB Hospital in Dixon are Arithia Cole, 46, Bellwood, and a passenger in the Cole car, James Clark, 47, Maywood.

According to investigating

Ogle County Sheriff's Police and witnesses, the Ballard and Cole vehicles were both westbound on Ill. 64 while the third car, operated by Barbara Bettner, 22, rural Oregon, was eastbound. The Cole auto attempted to pass the Ballard car and struck the Bettner vehicle in the left side as the Bettner car was attempting to avoid the collision. The impact of the two cars caused the Cole auto to spin around backwards into the westbound lane, where it struck the Ballard vehicle head-on.

Ballard was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Anthony's Hospital in Rockford, where he was transported by the Mt. Morris ambulance. Mrs. Ballard and her daughter were taken to Rockford Memorial Hospital by Mt. Morris ambulance. Mrs. Ballard died a short time later in the hospital. Cole and Clark were transported to KSB Hospital in Dixon by the Oregon ambulance. Bettner was not hospitalized.

Ogle County Sheriff's Deputies are investigating the accident.

Funeral arrangements for the Ballards are pending in the Finch Funeral Home, Mt. Morris.

Wild Ogle County chase

OREGON, Ill. (AP) — A teen-age Mount Morris youth was captured early today after being pursued by authorities in five cars in a 10-mile chase over rural roads.

Stephen De Turris, 18, was charged with aggravated assault, fleeing police, drinking as a minor and reckless conduct.

Police said the chase ensued after De Turris was involved in a disturbance at an Oregon residence. They confiscated a zip-gun at the dwelling that they said belonged to De Turris, who fled carrying a hand grenade.

Authorities said the youth tossed the grenade into a river during the chase. Later he told them it was a defused grenade packed with clay.

A squad car was damaged when police forced De Turris off the road near Mount Morris. He was held in Ogle County Jail in Oregon.

Economic upturn seen during next 18 months

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agreement is now fairly widespread that the economic upturn next year, while nothing to shout about, will be better than sluggish.

That and other pieces of the nation's economic outlook for the next 18 months are beginning to fall into place, with some key pieces provided by President Ford's economic and budget review Friday.

There is reluctant agreement that the nation's unemployment rate will continue alarmingly high at least through 1976, and probably beyond.

The rate of inflation is coming under control more rapidly than the administration had forecast previously, but still will be higher than Americans had been used to before the big price boom in 1973.

And fears of "crowding out" — the expression used when government borrowing diverts money from private borrowing — appear to have largely dissipated in recent weeks as both long and short-term interest rates have declined.

In its mid-year economic and budget review, the Ford administration said the economy should grow at a rate of 6.3 per cent next year, a significant improvement over the official 4.8 per cent forecast made in February.

Chairman Alan Greenspan of the President's Council of Economic Advisors said Friday he expects a return to economic growth by the third quarter of this year, if not the second quarter.

The unemployment outlook is the grimmest statistic of all. The President's revised forecast projected average unemployment this year at 8.7 per cent, up from its February forecast of 8.1 per cent. The average jobless rate for next year was projected at 7.9 per cent, which translates into 7.1 million unemployed workers.

Inflation, as measured by the increase in consumer prices, is expected to ease to 7.8 per cent this year, down from 12.2 per cent in 1974, and to 5.8 per cent in 1976. That's better than earlier forecasts.

In other economic developments: —Chrysler Corp. said it is extending a price rebate program through June on some models. The firm said $200 rebates will be granted to purchasers of compact Darts and Valiants.

the Dodge Sportsman or Tradesman vans and the Plymouth Voyager. The purchased model must be in stock to qualify for the discount.

—The Agriculture Department said the prices farmers receive for raw agricultural products jumped 5 per cent from April 15 to May 15.

—The Treasury Department announced it will auction off 500,000 ounces of government gold on June 30. Officials said the auction was scheduled because of rising imports of gold.

Recycling cans record is set

NEW YORK (AP) — A record 2.3 billion all-aluminum cans were taken to recycling centers across the United States last year, the Aluminum Association has reported.

The cans weighed a total of 103 million pounds and represented one out of every six aluminum cans used during 1974, the association said Friday.

Jury screening technique on trial

By DON OAKLEY

A new and, to many people, disturbing phenomenon affecting the American system of justice has emerged in recent years out of the civil rights and war protest movements.

This is the use of teams of psychologists and sociologists to assist defense attorneys in the pretrial screening of jurors, a technique credited with achieving a string of acquittals in celebrated cases—from the "Harrisburg Seven" to the "Camden 28" to the trials of Angela Davis, of Maurice Stans and John Mitchell and the Wounded Knee conspiracy defendants.

The technique has been honed to a fine art with the employment of computer-developed "community profiles" and out-of-court interviews of potential jurors as well as the in-court analysis of their demeanor during the selection process.

In the Angela Davis case, for example, handwriting experts were used to analyze the signatures of prospective jurors, and in the Wounded Knee trial, prospective jurors were assessed for their "deference to authority" by the way they answered "yes, sir" and "no, sir" to questions.

Writing in a recent issue of Trial magazine, published by the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, sociologist Amitai Etzioni warns that this kind of "manipulation" of jurors not only threatens the jury system but the average defendant cannot afford such aid.

So far, he notes, the procedure has been used solely by defense attorneys. But what will happen if the state resorts to it? Could any but the most affluent Americans compete with the state once it began to apply it to the prosecution?

"The net effect of the new technique, as is so often the case with new technology, will be to give a leg up to the wealthy or those who command a dedicated following," thinks Etzioni.

The fact is that in at least one case, "the state" has already availed itself of the new technique. An outfit called Conceptual Dynamics, Inc., of Roslyn Heights, N.Y., was hired at Ohio taxpayer expense to help defense lawyers select a jury in the manslaughter trial last year of eight former Ohio national guardsmen charged in the Kent State shootings. The trial, however, ended in a directed acquittal.

By way of turnabout, some of the professionals involved in the Harrisburg and other trials are currently assisting attorneys for the parents of the slain and wounded students who are seeking civil damages from the same guardsmen and others, including Ohio Gov. John Rhodes and former Kent State President Robert I. White.

In an opposing article in the same issue of Trial, attorney Howard A. Moore Jr., a member of the Angela Davis defense team, counters that "social scientists are necessary, not to slant juries but to correct the prejudices which already exist."

In the Davis trial, he says, there was absolutely no possibility that a jury partial to the controversial activist could be empaneled. The most the defense hoped for was a jury which only disclosed an unfavorable, ignorant attitude toward her rather than a very unfavorable, beligerent attitude. For this, they relied on the insights of the psychologists.

Proposals that have been made to prohibit the pretrial investigation of prospective jurors are antidemocratic, says Moore. They would trench the status quo. They would not prevent jury stacking because "juries are already stacked—against blacks, Chicanos, Orientals and the poor."

Nevertheless, the last word may be Etzioni's when he predicts that "the state will almost surely have to do its own research if only to even the odds."

District attorneys cannot be expected to stand by doing nothing, he says, while defendants "buy themselves a significant edge in case after case" and eventually "the champions of the technique will have to realize that the days it could be reserved for their favorite defendants are over."

U.S. digs into multinational bribery

WASHINGTON (LENS)—That Gulf Oil paid out $5 million to government officials in South Korea and Bolivia is expected to be but the first of a string of disclosures on corporate corruption to be unravelled over the next few months by Sen. Frank Church's subcommittee on multinationals.

Gulf's activities, if offensive, were probably not illegal. There is nothing in American law that prohibits the payment of a bribe to a foreign official, but there is a great deal of legislation, vigorously enforced by the Securities and Exchange Commission, that makes it a criminal offense for a company to disguise or omit such payments from its shareholders' accounts.

The SEC is investigating some of the bluest chips in American industry for doing just that: not only Gulf Oil but Northrop, Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing, American Ship, Phillips Petroleum, Ashland Oil and United Brands are all now under investigation for keeping secret political slush funds.

As Gulf Oil's chairman, Robert Dorsey, has made plain to Sen. Church's subcommittee there is nothing new in greasing palms. It was over 10 years ago that Gulf first set up its secret fund which finally totalled $10 million and was used for purposes as diverse as contributing illegal finance for President Nixon's 1972 election campaign and buying helicopters for the former president of Bolivia.

The largest payment was $4 million to help finance the reelection of President Park in South Korea, which, Gulf Oil claims, was not so much a bribe as an extortion wrung from the company by threats against its $350 million investment in the country. Far from squandering its shareholders' money, Gulf claims that it was protecting their interests.

This is the defense that many companies are likely to fall back upon, particularly those in the arms industry where bribes and kickbacks are a recognized and successful way of securing contracts.

One of America's largest arms exporters, Northrop, is alleged to have spent $30 million in 1973 and 1974 in under-the-table payments. With a turnover of $1.5 billion in those two years Northrop may have placed this money skillfully abroad, but many of its domestic contributions, including $150,000 to President Nixon's campaign, were illegal. In some countries it is entirely within the law to support political candidates with corporate funds, and many multinationals feel that they are justified in doing so.

Bot Exxon—now the world's largest multinational—and Mobil Oil admitted last week that they had supported politicians in Canada and Italy and the SEC had raised no objections. But the line is thin and ill-defined. The SEC is now suing Ashland Oil for payments of $4 million made to win foreign oil concessions, which it failed to disclose in its accounts. The commission's main concern in bringing these suits (and more are expected to follow) is the apparent ease with which multinationals manage to lose large sums of money from their accounts for such secret activities.

Sen. Church has other fears. By making payments to the officials of foreign governments, American multinationals can set foreign policy often more effectively than the state department, or can encourage positions that run against the interests of the United States.

Gulf, for example, paid an undisclosed sum to an Arab organization to finance propaganda for the Palestinian cause. The most serious effect of the disclosures has been in Latin America.

The president of Honduras was deposed last month after it was revealed that the United Brands banana company had paid out $1.25 million to his government. Bolivia has threatened to stop paying compensation for nationalized United States' assets until Gulf Oil reveals exactly whom it bribed; and Venezuela, Peru and Ecuador have all demanded investigations into American multinationals. As Sen. Church digs further, particularly into Northrop next month, the squeals of outraged innocence should grow louder.

Defense not spent well

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—A decade ago, the National Security Council and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara developed a long-range prediction of Soviet military plans.

U.S. defense strategy these past 10 years has been predicated on these estimates. They guided the multibillion dollar buildup of missiles, planes and other weapons, determined the composition of our defense forces and the thrust of our research and development.

No new comprehensive study has been made since.

Today, it is clear these estimates made so carefully and with McNamara precision early in the 1960s were dead wrong.

The McNamara studies predicted the Soviet Union would concentrate on defense. Instead, Moscow has put its maximum effort on offensive weapons.

Instead of the gradual buildup expected, the Soviet Union has devoted multibillions to a massive all-out effort.

The prediction was that major Soviet missile programs would be held back by harsh technical problems. Instead, Soviet scientists have achieved MIRVing and accurate breakthroughs with astonishing speed. There is no suggestion of a slowdown in the rate of these advances.

The Soviets also have shown an amazing ability in the concurrent development of new weapons involving huge sums of money and the mobilization of tens of thousands of technicians. The Russian program under which four new major missiles are being readied, would have cost us $12 billion in research and development alone. The Soviets have placed a much heavier concentration of scientists than predicted in their military programs and have put a much greater than expected sustained effort over these 10 years into the training of military scientists. Some independent scholars now suggest that perhaps 90 per cent of all qualified Soviet research men are in the USSR defense program.

The diversity of sophisticated Soviet weapon development is greater than was foretold; in addition to the four new major missile families, there are warships of advanced design, military lasers, preliminary mobile missile prototypes reloadable-type missile silos, way-out anti-tank and anti-aircraft weapons, radar and bridging equipment.

The orderliness and consistency in the Soviet military research and development effort has been grossly underestimated. They have moved smoothly into new programs as old ones were completed. It is a persistent, rolling effort that has grown without letup, without the ups and downs, starts and stops associated with U.S. military developments.

Russian military advances have been held back less than expected by economic problems.

As a result of these miscalculations, the United States has gone off on the wrong track. Our original mistakes have been compounded by our neglect in not continually bringing the original studies up to date with successive corrections based on the realms of satellite, agent and electronic intelligence we have been gathering these many years.

This is not to argue we should have spent more on defense. It is to say that we would, if we had analyzed the data thoroughly, have spent the funds we had more wisely. Our missiles, warships and submarines and our ground weapons would have been built with different characteristics. Our force structure would have been radically changed.

It is time for a reassessment of where we are going.

Housing rebate plans under fire

WASHINGTON (LENS)—Rebates to tempt the buyers of everything from cars to electric irons have been common this year. Even builders have joined in, offering new cars or holidays in romantic places to shift their stock of some 600,000 houses, apartments and mobile homes hanging over the housing market.

Now Congress has come up with a new rebate on houses, and it is the taxpayer who is footing the bill.

When the big tax-cut bill was going through Congress, Sen. Russell Long (D-La.), convinced his colleagues at the eleventh hour that what was needed to cure the slump in the housing industry was a 5 per cent rebate up to $2,000 on the price of a new house.

House-building is now at so low a level that developers are cheering themselves with the thought that the bottom must have been reached, but instead of welcoming the rebate most of them are looking the gift-horse sourly in the mouth.

The biggest drawback is that for a house to qualify work on it must have been started before

March 26th; the contract for its sale must be signed before the end of the year.

This is all very well for the developer who has houses on his hands (most of them are in just two states, Florida and California, where there has been a lot of over-building). But it is hard on the man who has cleared his stocks, perhaps by cutting prices, and wants to spend the summer building new houses.

Who will want to buy them if they cannot carry the tag "$2,000 off"?

Furthermore the builder must certify that the house has never been sold at a lower price, to prevent profiteering. But this may well mean selling at a loss if the builder has had to pay property taxes and interest on a house for six months or more.

The bill has other defects. Only the buyer of a house costing $40,000 or more gets the full rebate, which seems hard on the average buyer; the median price for a house today is around $35,000. And if the purchaser is selling his old house to buy a new one, as most people do, he will find that any capital gain must be deducted before the rebate is calculated.

For all the measure's complexities and inequities, it does seem to be selling houses, aided, perhaps, by the fear that mortgage rates are about to turn up again.

But builders and buyers who will not benefit from the rebate are looking to Congress for much broader help.

Both houses have now passed bills authorizing a subsidy to buyers which will keep the mortgage interest they pay down to six per cent for three years; alternatively purchasers with incomes not far above the median may have a grant of $1,000 toward their down payments.

President Ford would like to veto the bill as too extravagant—its initial cost is put at $1 billion—compared with some $600 million for the rebate. But if the final version includes, as the Senate bill does, the popular program of loans to people about to lose their homes through foreclosure, he may hesitate in the knowledge that his veto may be overridden.

Discriminating juries

Juries seem to be much more reluctant to vote large awards when the government is the defendant in a damage suit than when private insurance company money is involved.

This is one of the findings of an analysis of personal injury cases involving government agencies just completed by the staff of Jury Verdict Research, Inc.

One reason, suggest the researchers, is that jurors (who are taxpayers in everyday life) realize the money they are awarding comes from them in the long run. Or it may be a way of telling governments—local, state and federal—to slow down on their spending.

The majority of suits analyzed involved local and state governments, and it was found that larger awards were granted against state governments than local ones. The smallest awards were those involving faulty maintenance of public property. Other categories included negligent acts by government employees and suits against school districts. In all of these situations, awards were below national averages in suits between private parties.

In a number of states and municipalities, juries are not allowed to decide the outcome of a suit when the government is the defendant. This seems to be changing, however, says Jury Verdict Research, and more areas are providing for jury trials in these cases.

Food for Americans
New Party dip 'n' dunk

Peanut spread for fruit and cake.

By AILEEN CLAIRE

Many things in North America have changed in the last generation but pre-teen girls still get together for wide awake slumber parties. This usually all-night chatter and giggle session needs to be primed with interesting snacks.

Polly's Pointers

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY — How does one renew the permanent creases in polyester slacks? I have a new double knit pair that was left in a too hot dryer too long. I now have to pay a dollar to have them pressed every time they are washed. — TOM.

DEAR TOM — Why not try doing this touch-up pressing yourself. Use a steam iron set on low. Such a good steam pressing should last through several washings. Do test iron first or use a damp pressing cloth or even a brown paper bag. Never pack soiled permanently pressed items tightly in the clothes hamper.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is that supermarkets do not have even one bench for a customer to sit on while waiting for a cab or someone in a car to pick them up. This is especially hard on the elderly. I also think it would be a good idea for public places, stores, etc., to have suggestion boxes and learn to please the public. — PEARL.

Tips on decorating home with plants

When you're decorating with plants, a lot depends on your apartment, furniture and the look you prefer. Here are some ideas to get your imagination started.

For decorating clues, take a long, hard look at any plant — the way it grows, the shape, texture and density of its leaves, even the curve of a stem. For example, a rubber tree is clean-lined and contemporary; feathery palms and ferns look great with wicker and bamboo; stark succulents might enhance your American Indian rugs or pottery.

All plants don't look best in groups. Your large cactus or delicate bonsai deserves its own spot as living sculpture.

When you do group plants, arrange at least three together and have shorter plants "step up" to taller ones. Also think up and down — not just sideways. Stagger plants on high and low pedestals or set them on a step ladder for a cascade of foliage.

Use plants in odd spaces where furniture can't fit: say, under a staircase or in front of an unused fireplace. You might remove a closet door, keep bottom shelves for bright storage boxes and leave the top area for plants. (Install special lighting to keep the plants alive in such spots.)

For a feeling of space give your eye a new direction to travel — up. Trailing plants look great in metal windowboxes sprayed white and suspended high by chains — or set on a ceiling-hung slatted wood tray. Floor plants set all along the narrow side of a room can also make it seem wider.

Curtain a whole window with greenery — or just the top half, leaving the bottom for cafe curtains or shutters. You might sit plants on glass shelves built into the window recess or hang them at different levels from the ceiling. Also try mixing pottery or basket containers with clear ones for some play of light through glass; use a hanging terrarium or a bowl with a philodendron or other plant that can grow in water instead of soil.

Think color. Your rust begonia might pick up copper tones in an area rug, set off coral or amber or cinnamon tones in your china pattern or add its own color accent to a neutral room. And don't forget that foliage comes in many shades of green, some more compatible with your furnishings than others.

Set plants next to other things with an outdoors look... paper or fabric in floral, fruit or animal patterns, landscape photos, a synthetic grass floor covering (like Astroturf) or a natural woven area rug like sisal.

Match plants up with other natural companions — a bowl of goldfish, gourds, driftwood, coral, sea shells, even a clear bowl filled with water and colored pebbles. Small framed photographs peeking from behind foliage add a personal touch, too.

Instead of cut flowers for your table, try a low ivy or shallow basket filled with small cactus plants. Or group plants with fruit and arrange herb pots with small baskets of strawberries or a bowl of

Program for Woman's Club Garden Division

The garden division of the Dixon Woman's Club met Monday afternoon in Loveland Community House when a dessert luncheon preceded an illustrated program entitled "Slides and Narrative of Japan" by Miss Zoa Favoright and Miss Dorothy Dodd, Sterling.

The speakers, who toured Japan in 1966, stated the country is the size of California and is heavily populated. Approximately one-fourth of the land is used to raise rice and green tea.

Mrs. Edward Bollman, division chairman, presided during a business meeting, which opened with the pledge of allegiance to the American flag.

Reports were given by Miss Goldie Gigous and Mrs. William Ferger, and Mrs. Alvah Drew Sr., reported on the group's plans to landscape an area at the Lee County Nursing Home.

It was announced that the Woman's Club craft group would meet with Mrs. Cecil Laughlin June 10 for a 6:30 p.m. scramble dinner, and the program included "Do You Know?" items by Mrs. Fayette Warner and Mrs. Drew. "The Thought for the Day" was presented by Miss Ruth Bollman.

During the dessert luncheon, served for 48 members and guests, Mrs. Lester Gaul and Mrs. Laughlin presided at the serving table, which was covered with a green cloth and held a Japanese centerpiece combining flowers, figurines and chopsticks.

Miss Favoright, chairman of the hostess committee, and Miss Dodd, co-chairman, were assisted by Mrs. Edward Schick, Mrs. Ralph Newman, Mrs. Laughlin, Mrs. Gaul, Mrs. Ralph Landis and Mrs. C. G. Pool.

Games provided entertainment, and refreshments were served from a table decorated in the bride-to-be's chosen colors, yellow and blue. Guests were from Walnut, Morrison and Tampico.

The social room of the Walnut United Methodist Church was the setting for a miscellaneous shower Saturday morning for Miss Whitver when hostesses were Mrs. Charles Keigwin, Mrs. Aurel Burke, Mrs. Glen Trone, Mrs. Clarel Brown, Mrs. Dorothy Swanson, Mrs. Howard Hussey, Mrs. Richard Pierson, Mrs. Cecil Plum and Mrs. Willard Burke.

A buffet breakfast was served from the table decorated in yellow and blue, and party guests were from Morrison, Wyand and Walnut.

Saturday evening Miss Whitver as honored at a miscellaneous shower hosted by her aunt, Mrs. Francis Lowery, and her assisting hostesses, Mrs. William Waring and daughters, Becky and Gail.

Games of bridal bingo were played, and the honoree was assisted at the gift table by Becky and Gail Waring.

Attending were guests from Polo, Morrison, Deer Grove, Prophetstown, Chenoa, Harmon, Walnut and from Davenport, Iowa.

Play not too bad if it works

By Oswald & James Jacoby
South bid his hand with all the delicacy of a Sherman tank rumbling through open country. Fortunately for his peace of mind his play was delicate and successful.

If West had opened a trump, nothing would have saved South's slam, but no one can really blame West for getting off to the king of diamonds lead. East dropped the four and South false-carded with the six, but West did not fall for it and shifted to a trump.

South won, cashed his aces of spades and diamonds, ruffed a diamond and led dummy's queen of spades.

East was smart enough not to cover and South discarded his three of clubs. The jack of spades came next and again East held back his king.

South huddled and finally ruffed. Then he ran off all his trumps. The last trump squeezed poor West who had to throw away his jack of clubs in order to retain a high diamond.

South led his queen of clubs, dropped West's king, covered with his ace in the dummy and picked up the last trick with his 10 of clubs.

South's line of play wasn't the best since it required finding both the king and jack of clubs in the West hand. But nothing succeeds like success and it was the one that worked. 31 (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

The Doctor says:

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB—I've never taken diuretics as I've never needed to. But, when I drink coffee (from one to two cups a day), I have to run to the bathroom most of the day and night. Could this cause me to eliminate too much potassium?

DEAR READER— Many people do get a mild diuretic effect from coffee, but it is usually not nearly as much of an action as you describe. Your case is an example of the variable response people have to coffee. You wouldn't have this response if you switched to one of the decaffeinated products. I would guess that too much tea and cola, which also contain caffeine, will cause you to have the same response.

Any diuretic that causes a pronounced elimination of urine is apt to wash out a lot of the body salts which include potassium and even sodium. I would prefer that you switch to a decaffeinated brand or not use coffee at all, but if you do use one of the caffeine-containing drinks you might increase your daily intake of orange juice to provide adequate amounts of potassium.

People who are taking diuretics or water pills for any reason may wash out too much potassium. Women who use diuretics to eliminate premenstrual fluid accumulation may lose too much sodium and potassium and feel fatigued. It isn't a bad idea for anyone who is taking a diuretic to also take two 8-ounce glasses of orange juice a day.

This will insure an adequate intake of potassium in most of these conditions.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I have a very good friend who is supposed to have an incurable kidney disease. He told me his doctor told him to drink lots of beer at all times to flush his kidneys out.

I know beer makes you go to the bathroom a lot, but I never heard of a doctor telling a patient to drink beer for a kidney problem. I know it is very bad for any infection of the kidneys, bladder and prostate gland.

In fact, it happened to me a few years ago, and my doctor forbade me to drink anything, including coffee and tea, so will you please tell me if any doctor would recommend drinking a lot of beer for a disease like that?

DEAR READER— In some kidney conditions it is wise to drink lots of fluid, specifically water, to help keep the urine diluted and, in a sense, flush the system. This is true in a person prone to kidney stones. It is often helpful in infections of the kidney and bladder.

Drinking lots of fluid does not mean drinking alcoholic beverages, including beer. Alcohol damages cells and is hard on the kidney and urinary tract. There is not a single kidney, bladder, or prostate disease or disorder that is benefited by alcohol. Tell your friend to switch to water without the alcohol, and he will do just as well.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
 Today is Saturday, May 31, the 151st day of 1975. There are 214 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1910, the Union of South Africa was founded.

On this date — In 1740, Frederick William the First of Prussia died and was succeeded by Frederick II, known as Frederick the Great.

In 1793, the Reign of Terror began in the French Revolution.

In 1889, more than 2,000 lives were lost in a flood at Johnstown, Pa.

In 1916, British and German fleets fought in the Battle of Jutland off Denmark. It was the only major engagement between the two fleets in World War I.

In 1943, in World War II, the French naval squadron at Alexandria, Egypt joined the Allies.

In 1962, former Nazi Adolf Eichmann was executed in Israel after his capture in Argentina and trial on charges of war crimes.

Ten years ago: Civil rights demonstrations were banned in Bogalusa, La., after two days of street fighting.

Five years ago: In South Vietnam, enemy troops which had seized part of the resort city of Dalat slipped past an encircling force and escaped.

One year ago: The U.S. Supreme Court agreed to make a quick decision on whether President Richard Nixon could withhold evidence of possible crimes from the Watergate prosecutor, Leon Jaworski.

Bicentennial footnote: It was 200 years ago today that a convention in Mecklenburg County, N. Car. passed resolutions declaring that English royal authority was "wholly suspended" in the American Colonies.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
 CASE D-672: Rosalie G., aged 39, grew very irate at a recent case I presented.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "you have done the chronic alcoholics a real injustice by denying that alcoholism is a disease!"

"Don't you know that leading authorities in medicine have said that excessive desire for liquor is a disease and that the drunkards should be treated as sick people?"

Medical Salesmanship
 Alcoholism is no more a disease than is addiction to cigarettes or to coffee or the cola beverages or gambling on horse races.

But many medics find it is tactful to bolster a patient's ego and shield him from undue family censure, by calling bad habits "diseases."

That's why we use such verbiage as "upper respiratory infection" for a simple cold or case of the "flu."

It's just medical salesmanship to please the patients and make them happier with their $10 to $25 office fee.

Earlier this week I gave you the classical case of a 60-year-old Chicago banker who was malingering about the terrific "stump pain" in his amputated leg.

But he "wanted" that pain, for it helped him coerce his young, attractive wife into giving him sympathy.

He never got those painful attacks when he went to the bank every day, for they came on only when she wished to attend a social event.

And he used his supposed excruciating pain to keep her home, for he dreaded he might lose her to a younger man if they went out to parties.

Even lifelong cigarette addicts have assumed it was a chemical nicotine hunger that made it impossible for them to quite their tobacco.

But during World War II, a group of heavy smokers were used as the unwitting human "guinea pigs" to test that fact. All the nicotine was removed from their cigarettes down to a minimal two per cent, much like caffeine has been taken out of Sanka and other coffee substitutes.

Then the cigarettes were toasted, rolled, packaged and their wives, as well as office secretaries, were asked to watch and listen to see if the men showed any reduction in the number of cigarettes they smoked daily.

And also notice if they commented about any difference in the taste of the cigarettes.

During the period of this experiment, all the men smoked just as many cigarettes as usual.

And only two even mentioned any difference in taste.

However, they were heard to be discussing the substitute (ersatz) products during the war, so the secretaries and wives didn't know if the men actually detected any difference in the taste, or if they just lumped their cigarettes in with other war products.

So the cigarette habit is mainly a "muscle hunger" that lets a tense or jittery victim wave his hand and arm for 5 or 10 minutes to drain off pent-up energy.

The onset of chronic alcoholism usually comes on at about the age of 40 when many female addicts grow scared of losing their sexual charm, due to the menopause, and men get panicky over their waning erotic verve.

Such habits are thus camouflage or "smoke screens" to cover more basic fears and relieve tension due to sexual inferiority complexes!

So send for my booklet "How to Break the Tobacco and Liquor Habits," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Until this year, if you worked for a company that had no pension plan, you were on your own when it came to planning a retirement income over and above social security.

The 1974 pension reform law changed that. Now you can contribute up to 15 percent of your annual earned income (to a maximum of $1,500) to your own individual retirement plan tax free, if you're not already covered by a company plan.

A properly endorsed retirement annuity or retirement endowment from New York Life is all you need. No other documents are necessary. No fees are due; the usual premiums cover all the costs.

Sirhan can stay in U.S. after parole

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Sirhan, convicted assassin of Robert F. Kennedy, can not be deported when he is paroled in 1986 as had previously been reported, immigration officials say.

"A person admitted as a permanent resident alien and convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude within five years after entry and sentenced to one year or more is deportable," Joe Dernetz, Los Angeles deputy director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service told the Pasadena Star News Friday.

"Since the conviction was more than ten years after his entry, he is not deportable from the United States," Dernetz said.

Sirhan entered the U.S. in 1957. He was convicted of shooting Kennedy at a Los Angeles victory party in 1968 after the senator won the California Democratic presidential primary election.

"If there had been another conviction there might have been a possibility of deportation, but that is the only conviction on his record," Dernetz said.

Sirhan was originally sentenced to death for the assassination, but his sentence was overturned by the State Supreme Court decision outlawing capital punishment. The sentence was changed to life in prison and Sirhan became eligible for parole. The state announced last week that the parole would take place in 1986.

Lulled by his absence, the media had but a few representatives at hand when the White House press office quietly floated his veto Thursday of a $5.3 billion jobs bill. Given the dearth of available congressmen who might otherwise have jumped at the chance to criticize, the timing couldn't have been better.

With the President gone, wouldn't Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller be busier than usual?

"He hasn't done a thing that he wouldn't have done anyway," said a spokesman. "In fact, he's spending the weekend in New York with his family."

With Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger — who frequently prefers being known as "a senior American official" — also out of the country, even Washington's production as a world listening post has gone downhill. You just don't see many stories quoting junior American officials, nor do they draw very well as guests of honor at embassy parties.

He said he does not feel that the CIA should plot political assassinations. But he said it is proper for the agency to engage in "covert operations" when they involve efforts to block a Communist takeover of a nation.

Referring to the Kennedy assassination, Tower said: "We have to accept the conclusions of the Warren Commission since it would be virtually impossible to make a thorough and exhaustive investigation now."

The indictment that led to the trial before Judge Hubert L. Will of U.S. District Court listed $45,000 allegedly extorted for 12 variations.

Daley, a cousin of Mayor Richard J. Daley, is a committeeman in the regular Democratic organization.

Bonk's attorney, Thomas A. Foran, said Daley and Haskins received immunity from prosecution because they were "clever enough to get the government to agree not to prosecute them for their crimes in exchange for testimony against Bonk."

Another county commissioner, Floyd T. Fulle, was indicted with Bonk on similar charges and will be tried separately.

$26 million left to nurse, 3 dogs; will contested

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (AP) — A judge has ordered the exhumation of a man who left his $26 million estate to a nurse and three dogs to determine if he was mentally competent when he made out his will.

Macomb County Probate Judge Kenneth N. Sanborn ordered an autopsy Friday after a nephew and two nieces of Sumner D. Lamkins contended that a 1968 will in which they were listed as heirs should be recognized over one made in 1972.

Court officials said the order to remove the body for the autopsy in a probate court matter is a first in Michigan.

Lamkins, whose legacy is estimated in excess of $26 million, died last September at 82 and left almost everything to Lucille Rahmeyer of Mount Clemens, his nurse. The only other beneficiaries were his three German Shepherd dogs: $10,000 was provided for their care.

Physicians who testified for the relatives said medical evidence could determine if Lamkins was suffering from any brain disorder at the time the will was drafted in 1972.

Dr. Werner Spitz, medical examiner from neighboring Wayne County, said he will check for evidence of hardening of the arteries, strokes, high blood pressure and extended heart insufficiency to determine if Lamkins' brain might have been affected.

Lamkins, owner of the New Haven Foundry near Mount Clemens, was entombed last Sept. 29.

The autopsy is expected to begin within 10 days after the body is removed from the crypt at the Clinton Grove Mausoleum. Spitz said the autopsy would take about 30 days.

Lamkins built his fortune in stocks, bonds, auto parts supply and the foundry.

Contesting the will are Mer-ton Lamkin of Harper Woods, Geraldine Stolzenfeld of Mount Clemens and Jane E. Dent of Kent, Wash.

Bear's den cozy ... but scary

PUNKIN CENTER, Ariz. (AP) — A bear's den is a pretty cozy place. Take the word of a man who crawled into the wintertime retreat to study one of the snoozing beasts.

"You have to have great respect for bears, they can hurt you pretty badly," says Al LeCount, a research biologist for the Arizona Game and Fish Department. "This particular bear seemed in pretty good humor and very sleepy, so it wasn't too risky."

LeCount had slithered into the den of a 300-pound black bear to install a device to help researchers gauge the temperature. Through snow, wind and subfreezing temperatures, he registered a cozy 40 degrees during the 45 days that it worked. Then the bear got hungry.

"He installed the sensor okay, but unfortunately the bear ate it," said Chuck Hanford, an agency employee. "Al was still able to get some pretty good information, though, before the bear got to it."

LeCount said the bear did stir a bit while he was inside, glanced up sleepily, but didn't lift a paw. LeCount said the bear had softened his rocky quarters with a layer of grass, chinked some crevices to keep drafts out, and stacked grass in the hallway, leaving just a small opening to the outside.

LeCount, 33, and his wife, Karen, live in this central Arizona village of a little more than 100 persons. With a home nestled between two mountain ranges, the couple tracks bears by horseback on the slopes of the Mazatzal Mountains a few miles to the west.

State officials say his five-year program is the first major study of black bears — at least on the eye-to-eye basis which LeCount uses.

"His project is so new and so unique that Al literally is on virgin ground most of the time," Hanford said. "He sets his own times and does his own thing."

LeCount's study also includes capturing bears in harmless snares, tranquilizing them and attaching radio transmitters which allow him to track the animals later and determine how far they range.

In the future, LeCount said, he hopes to study the bear's reproduction rate and where the new cubs go so man can get a better picture of the animal's life on the edge of the Southwest desert.

Kids killed in church chartered bus crash

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Two children have been killed and 10 others injured in the crash of a bus chartered by an Illinois church group on their way here to help celebrate a pastor's anniversary.

Police said the bus, chartered by the Mount Zion Baptist Church of Zion, Ill., skidded across a curve on rain-slicked Interstate 94 Friday night, bounced off the median and slid back across three lanes of highway before it tipped over and fell down an embankment. There were approximately 30 persons on board.

Two children were killed, and 14 other persons were injured, none seriously. The victims were identified as Tona Collins, 9, and Leroy Alexander, 14, both of Zion.

It took firemen an hour to free two passengers trapped in the bus, while others scrambled out of windows and the back door or were pulled out by rescuers.

The Milwaukee County sheriff's office said the accident was under investigation. The driver was among those that were not injured.

The bus was headed for a Milwaukee church to help celebrate the 19th anniversary there of the Rev. James Lathan, a friend of the Rev. B.J. Gaston, pastor of the Mount Zion church.

One of a series of pictures of noted Americans and events in our history which will be printed in The Telegraph in recognition of the United State's Bicentennial in cooperation with the John Hancock Insurance Co.

Walt Whitman, who was born May 31, 1819, is best remembered for his poem on the death of Lincoln. "Oh Captain! My Captain!" He left school at the age of 13 and learned his father's carpenter trade. Whitman also worked as a typesetter and for a short time published a weekly newspaper. His "Leaves of Grass," which came out in 1855 was rudely received by critics and ignored until praised by Ralph Waldo Emerson. He spent his later years enlarging the "Leaves of Grass," in which he tried to express his beliefs in individual freedom and the brotherhood of man. He died in Camden, N.J., in 1892. The above picture of Whitman is a reproduction of a painting by William S. Smith.

Cutting 51,000 from payroll

'Shock therapy' for NYC fiscal woes

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Abraham D. Beame, with scathing denunciations of Republican lawmakers and Wall Street bankers, has announced an $11.89 billion "shock therapy" budget that he says will cut 51,000 employees from the city payroll by June 30.

In addition to the 13,782 dismissals Beame already had ordered, the new 1975-76 "crisis-level" budget called for layoffs of another 37,315 city employees. One of every three policemen and sanitation workers and one of every five firemen will be fired. Workers in education, health, transportation, housing, parks and municipal government are also marked for dismissal.

Beame said the budget would mean:

—Curtailed or elimination of school programs; increased class sizes; reduction or elimination of special classes, school lunches and other activities, and elimination of 11,000 education jobs.

—A cut of more than 20,000 students in the City University's September freshmen class.

—Firing of 4,200 police; 700 police civilian employees, and elimination of the entire 2,300-member school crossing guard unit.

—Firing of 2,300 fire fighters and elimination of scores of engine and ladder companies.

—Firing of 2,882 sanitation workers; garbage collection reductions throughout the city, and a 50 per cent cut in snow removal services.

—Closing of numerous branch libraries or shortened hours; and shorter visiting hours at zoos and museums.

Accompanied by Gov. Hugh L. Carey, Beame had journeyed in vain to Washington to ask Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and President for financial help. Their turn downs drew scorn from the mayor.

Hours before the mayor's delivery of the budget message, the city received from Albany a $200 million advance on welfare payments due from the state in the first quarter of 1976. This permitted the city to meet bond and payroll obligations due today. But Beame was irked by what he thought was an unsympathetic reception by state legislators at Albany.

"These are not threats," the Democratic mayor said Thursday evening when he presented the the country's second largest budget to a jam-packed, televised session of the 43-member City Council, the Board of Estimate, the heads of all city departments and leaders of the municipal labor unions.

"Without recourse to additional aid, we must move from programmed recovery to shock therapy," he said.

In an emotional 20-minute speech, Beame lashed out at the financial community, accusing it of lack of responsiveness to the city's monetary needs "despite unprecedented actions taken by my administration to move the city to a sounder financial position."

A spokesman for the financial community, Ellmore C. Patterson of Guaranty Trust, said: "We feel confident a congressional inquiry into New York's financial problems ... would show that the financial institutions of the city have been working hard to help achieve a constructive solution to the problems."

Tie at Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Near-sighted Miller Barber didn't have to see it. He knew he had an eagle from the crowd reaction.

"You know," said Barber, "there's a par clap, there's a birdie clap and there's an eagle clap. I knew that was an eagle clap."

Barber's eagle on the 358-yard, par-four 14th started a late surge Friday that saw the man called "Mr. X" move into a share of the Atlanta Golf Classic lead with U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin at nine-under-par 135 for 36 holes.

"I just don't do that," said the balding 44-year-old veteran who would become golf's ninth million dollar winner with a victory in this $225,000 designated event that makes it mandatory for the top players to participate.

"I don't remember when I last had an eagle," said Barber, who holed a pitching wedge from 115 yards away, then closed with birdies on the final two holes to fashion an eight-under-par 64—tying the course record—on the hilly, 6,883-yard Atlanta Country Club course.

Irwin, lodged in a three-day deadlock after the first round, retained his share of the lead by shooting a 69 Friday despite some difficulty with his driver.

Larry Hinson turned in a 67 in the breezy, humid conditions to trail the leaders by two shots at 137. Then came Jim Dent alone in fourth place at 138 after firing a 68.

Four were grouped at 139, including Johnny Miller, winner of three events in the West earlier this year. Miller eagled the par-five finishing hole for a 71.

Others at 139 were Billy Casper, who shared the opening day lead, Jerry Heard and Charles Coody. Heard and Coody had 68s and Casper a 73.

Jack Nicklaus, who won the last two events on this course, soared to a 73.

Paisley, Weed head south

Illinois Junior College doubles champions Randy Paisley and Jim Weed, along with Sauk Valley tennis coach Frank Palumbo, will leave Sunday for Ocala, Fla., to compete in the National Tournament.

Paisley and Weed earned the right to advance to Florida by copping the Illinois doubles title earlier in the month. The seeding meeting will be held Monday, with competition to begin on Tuesday morning. The meet will wind up Saturday morning.

"We hope to do as well as Gary Helms and Greg Jokert did last year," Palumbo commented Friday. "Greg and Gary won four matches last year before losing to the eventual champions. It is the third time Sauk Valley has been to the Nationals, as John Wilkinson and Dave Helms qualified in 1968. Wilkinson and Helms were 1-1."

Paisley and Weed have a 17-0 doubles mark so far this season. Both will also participate in singles, with Jim owning an 18-4 slate and Randy unbeaten in 22 matches. Both athletes are former Dixon High School netters and were key performers for a squad that finished ninth in the Illinois High School Association meet in 1974.

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds announced Friday their best attendance in history for the month of May, reporting that they had drawn 314,754 fans to Riverfront Stadium.

The average paid attendance for the 13 home dates was 24,212, also the best ever for the club during the month of May.

The total paid attendance for 1975 went over the half-million mark this week and now stands at 518,832. This total, for 21 home dates, represents an increase of 89,321 over last year.

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Wind of the World Football League Friday signed six players, including three who played with the WFL's defunct Chicago Fire.

Picked up from the Fire, which folded before the 1974 season ended, were center Guy Murdoch, defensive end Mick Heinrich and tight end Don Burchfield. Signed as free agents were quarterbacks Roy Nystrom of Platteville, Wis., State and Pete Beatrice of Brown, and safety Richard Marx of Northern Illinois.

The Wind now has 47 players under contract.

PARK CITY, Utah (AP) — The United States Ski Team has named Tom Upham of Wilton, Maine, as coach of the women's cross-country team.

Upham was on the U.S. Ski Team from 1964 to 1968, participating in the 1968 Olympics at Grenoble, France. He retired after an injury and became ski coach at the University of New Hampshire, a post he held until 1972. He currently runs a sporting goods store.

VANCOUVER (AP) — The British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League announced Friday the signing of quarterback Eric Guthrie, who played last year with the Detroit Wheels of the World Football League.

Guthrie, 28, is a native of Vancouver who played with the Lions in 1972 and 1973. He attended Boise State College.

OTTAWA (AP) — The Canadian Cabinet is studying proposals to mint a special gold coin and to include an Olympic design on all 1976 coins as a way of extending further financial assistance to the Montreal Olympic Games.

Under one proposal, the Olympic organizing committee would receive the difference between the production cost of coins and their face value. Last year that amounted to about $60 million when more than six billion coins were produced.

GOLF

John Loos captured the Class A competition while Jack Thompson took the Class B championship. Don Sprecher the Class C competition and Harold Bay the Class D title during the Men's Sweepstakes at the Dixon Country Club this week.

A total of 36 holes of golf was counted in the scores, including handicap. Class A included golfers with 0-12 handicap, Class B 13-18, Class C 19-24 and Class D 24-30.

Loos took the Class A with a 132 total, followed by Ken Detweiler at 137, Bud Harn 138, Roger Lofgren 140, Don Mewhitzer 141, John Douglas 141, Tom Brown 142, Utley Noble Jr. 143, Pete Shaffer 143, C. Fisher 143, and J. Stewart 143.

Thompson's 138 claimed the Class B title. Larry Sullivan was second with 140, followed by Neal Peterson 141, Earl Slagle 143, Dr. Paul Rittman 145, and Jim Naylor 146. Sprecher's 143 was the best in Class C, with Ron Hodapp second at 146, Dale Senneff third at 147, and Vincent Castell fourth at 157. Bay claimed the Class D crown with 159.

"I kept getting calls from the Padres. They wanted to watch me work out before one of their games before I was supposed to report to Walla Walla, Wash. I was kind of worried about that because I know a lot of people in baseball who might recognize me."

Drives in five runs in Ranger win

Howell makes big hit for Texas

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Roy Howell made a big hit for the Texas Rangers and at the same time struck a blow for unconventional baseball strategy.

Howell knocked in five runs Friday night to lead the Rangers to a 6-5 victory over the New York Yankees—and his last RBI upset the accepted "percentage" rules of the game.

Howell, a left-handed hitter, was allowed to hit against Sparky Lyle, a left-handed pitcher—and came through with the game-winning single in the ninth inning.

That's not done, is it, Billy Martin?

"Roy can hit left-handers," said the Texas Ranger manager, who often forsakes the safety of the book. "He showed me that in spring training."

In other American League games, the Minnesota Twins beat the Boston Red Sox 4-3, the Baltimore Orioles blanked the California Angels 5-0 and the Oakland A's turned back the Cleveland Indians 6-2. Two games were rained out—Chicago at Detroit and Kansas City at Milwaukee.

Jeff Burroughs, who hit a home run in the eighth to tie the game 5-5 before Howell's dramatic hit, backed up Martin's thinking. "Roy was swinging the bat well—and let's face it, Billy plays baseball unconventionally."

Howell had two singles before his ninth-inning hit put an end to a six-game losing streak for the Rangers.

Howell's game-winning hit followed Toby Harrah's leadoff double in the ninth. Harrah doubled to left-center off Lyle, 1-4, before Howell singled to left, giving reliever Jackie Brown, 3-5, the triumph.

Twins 4, Red Sox 3

Run-scoring singles by Tony Oliva and Eric Soderholm in the seventh inning boosted Minnesota over Boston. Oliva ripped a 1-2 pitch from Boston reliever Diego Segui down the right field line to score Rod Carew. Soderholm's single scored Sergio Ferrer, who had stolen second base after going in to run for Oliva.

Orioles 5, Angels 0

Jim Palmer pitched a four-hitter and hurled his fourth shutout of the season, enabling Baltimore to snap a seven-game losing streak with its victory over California.

A's 6, Indians 2

Right-hander Dick Bosman survived a shaky start and scattered seven hits in eight innings as Oakland defeated Cleveland, his former team. Bosman was traded to the A's less than two weeks ago.

National League

Young Bob Apodaca was facing old Willie McCovey for the first time. Veteran catcher Jerry Grote suggested a breaking pitch. Apodaca opted for a fast-ball.

"I wanted to get it down and away," he explained.

CRASH!

"Obviously it wasn't down and obviously it wasn't away enough," he explained further.

McCovey's grand-slam home run off Apodaca—the 16th of his career to tie Hank Aaron's National League record—capped San Diego's six-run outburst in the eighth inning that carried the Padres to their 6-2 victory over the New York Mets.

In Friday's other NL results, Pittsburgh edged Atlanta 2-1, Houston blanked Philadelphia 5-0 and St. Louis nipped Cincinnati 5-4. Los Angeles was leading Chicago 3-1 when play was halted by darkness in the eighth inning—to be resumed before today's regularly scheduled game. San Francisco at Montreal was rained out.

"I was looking for an off-speed pitch, not a fastball," McCovey admitted after he parked his fifth homer of the year far beyond the right field wall. "He shook off Grote and that got me confused."

Losers Jerry Koosman had a five-hit shutout going before John Grubb, Enzo Hernandez and Bobby Tolan singled for one run and Dave Winfield doubled to tie it in the eighth. Mike Ivie was intentionally walked to load the bases, Apodaca took over and McCovey, hitting for Fred Kendall, did his thing.

Winner Randy Jones, 7-2 this year after a disastrous 8-22 mark last season, had his 19-inning scoreless string snapped in the first when Del Unser hit his fourth homer of the year.

Pirates 2, Braves 1
"I had a pretty good idea I was going to hit for somebody," said Pittsburgh's Ed Kirkpatrick. "It was just a matter of who and at what time."

The who was winning pitcher Jerry Reuss and at what time was in the bottom of the ninth inning, when he lined a two-strike pitch by Buzz Capra into right for the single that beat Atlanta. It scored Richie Hebner, who had batted for Art Howe and doubled to open the ninth for the Pirates.

Astros 5, Phillies 0
Houston's Doug Koniceney got his first major league shut-out with a seven-hitter at Philadelphia's expense. Astros' catcher Milt May drove in three runs with a pair of doubles to lead the offensive charge.

Cardinals 5, Reds 4

Lou Brock's ninth-inning single, following one-out hits by Mario Guerrero and Ron Fairly, carried the Cardinals past Cincinnati.

Sutton waits for victory

CHICAGO (AP)—It isn't often that Don Sutton defeats the Chicago Cubs and even when a victory is apparent, he'll have to go through an unusual waiting period.

"It's like a space shot," said Sutton. "We're down to two, minus 24 and holding."

With the Dodgers leading 3-1 going into the bottom of the eighth inning of a game which had been delayed 59 minutes in the first inning because of rain, Umpire Ed Sudol suspended the game because of darkness.

The game will be resumed prior to today's regularly scheduled game, with a starting time of 12:15 p.m. CDT.

Sutton, who has an 8-3 record this season and 147-116 in his career, nevertheless is only 4-16 against the Cubs. Why?

"I don't know why and I'm sick and tired of hearing about it," said Sutton. "I don't think about it but I'm always sure somebody is going to ask me about it."

"There's no explanation," said Sutton. "There are some games they have kicked the brains out of me and there are others like in LA the last time."

The last time in Los Angeles Sutton gave up only five hits and struck out 11 but was on the losing end of a 2-1 decision, the Cubs' only victory over the Dodgers this season.

Sutton now must stand by and watch somebody else protect his victory over the Cubs Saturday.

urday.

"It'll be Andy Messersmith," said Dodger Manager Walt Alton. "I can't think of anybody better under the circumstances with a two-run lead and two innings to go. Andy will also pitch the regular game."

It wouldn't be Messersmith, of course, if the Dodgers had Mike Marshall available. Marshall, however, has been on the disabled list.

Depending on what the Cubs do in the bottom of the eighth inning, almost anyone, including Darold Knowles, could hurl for them in the ninth.

Ray Burris, who stands to be the losing pitcher, was kayoed in the seventh when Oscar Zamora bailed him out of a bases-loaded situation. Knowles pitched a 1-2-3 eighth.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the second inning on a double by Rick Monday, an infield out and a sacrifice fly by Manny Trillo. The Dodgers tied it in the fourth on doubles by Steve Garvey and Ron Cey and then went ahead in the fifth on Dave Lopes' third homer of the year.

They added an insurance run in the sixth on another double by Garvey and a single by Ivan De Jesus.

Messersmith, who can pick up an automatic save in the suspended game, will take a 7-1 record into the regular game and will work against Rick Reuschel, 3-5.

Passes as rookie shortstop

Perone is imposter

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — The story Rocky Perone has to tell may make one think there's a reason the San Diego Padres have finished last in the National League each year of their existence.

At 35, Perone donned a hairpiece, passed himself off as a 21-year-old rookie shortstop and was signed by the Padres. The perennial major league cellar dwellers assigned Perone to a minor league team and he actually played in a game before being cut.

"Yeah, it's true," admits Mike Port, San Diego's minor league administrator. "We signed him."

Perone, a construction worker, isn't just an ordinary guy, however. He's a self-proclaimed baseball vagabond who's played minor league or semipro ball every year since he left Lisbon Falls, Me., in 1957. He had always wanted to play in the majors but said, "I was 5-feet-8 and 165 pounds. Scouts don't like my size. If I'd ever been given a chance, I'd have been a Fred Patek-type guy."

Patek is a 5-foot-4 shortstop for Kansas City.

Last year, Perone set out to make the big time despite overwhelming odds.

"I did it to prove a point—that baseball scouts don't know much about baseball prospects."

He was living here, but conceded, "I didn't think I could pull it off in Southern California because too many scouts knew me. So I went to Florida. I started playing in a park league in St. Petersburg and Jim Marshall, the Padres' Florida scout, liked me. He told me he wanted to watch me work out at Florida Southern University. So I did."

"My hair was short so I wore a youthful-looking hairpiece. I told them I was 21. The coach at Florida Southern hit me some grounders and I hit a little bit. He wanted to offer me a scholarship."

"Well, Marshall called me and said he wanted to sign me. So I did."

"I kept getting calls from the Padres. They wanted to watch me work out before one of their games before I was supposed to report to Walla Walla, Wash. I was kind of worried about that because I know a lot of people in baseball who might recognize me."

"But I pulled that off too; I fielded about 60 grounders before a Padre game, went in the locker room, changed my clothes and went home. They still thought I was 21."

When he reported on June 19, 1974 to Walla Walla, he learned that even at the make-believe age of 21 he would be the oldest guy on the Padre farm team.

"I really had to watch myself around the guys. I concentrated on saying 'far out,' and that stuff. And I was using Swedish skin cream to keep my face supple."

"Well, I nearly died during spring training. The wind sprints were awful. But I stuck it out. I was determined to get into a game, to have it on record."

"Our third game was at Lewiston, Idaho. (Manager Cliff) Ditto said, 'Perone, you're starting today.' I got a hit and stole a base. I thought the jig might be up at Lewiston because their manager, Bobby Hoffman, was my manager at Daytona Beach 13 years ago. I stayed away from him before the game."

"After the game, he came up to me and said, 'Don't I know you from somewhere?'"

"No sir," I said.

"How old are you—you gotta be 25," he said. "Okay then, I'm 25," I said. He didn't recognize me."

"Two days later Ditto calls me into his office and told me they had to let me go because they were bringing in a high draft choice. So I packed up and left."

Port said he was present when Perone checked in at Walla Walla.

"He conned us, no question about it. The guy really is young-looking," he said, referring to Perone's unlined face and no gray hair, "but he can't play ball."

"We could see the first day of camp that something didn't add up. His reactions and movements were poor. But we didn't suspect he'd lied about his age. He didn't have a chance of making it, but since he'd driven all the way up here, we let him play in a game."

"The day before he left, his roommate happened to get a look at his driver's license and said he was born in 1938. Then after his name appeared in that one box score, a minor league statistician called us and wanted to know if the R. Perone guy was Rocky Perone's son."

"We were taken in by the guy."

Perone, now writing a book, is working on becoming a pitcher.

"I'm working on a knuckle ball," he said. "There isn't a catcher in San Diego who can handle my knuckle ball."

"Do you know any clubs who need a good relief pitcher?"

TENNIS FOR THE FUN OF IT

BY ROD LAVER & ROY EMERSON

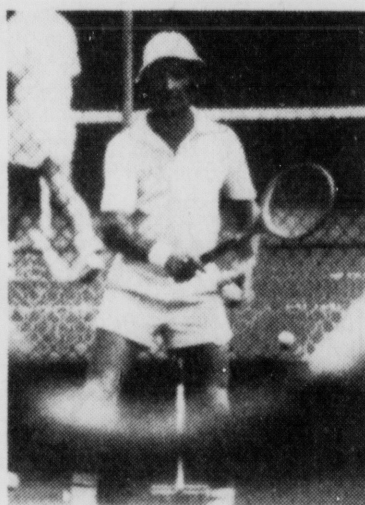

What's a good practice drill for three players?

ROD. Three is an excellent number for a drill. You put two at the net with as many balls as you can get and one man at the baseline.

ROY. The poor bloke at the baseline has to chase down all the balls the net men hit to him. No fair not running them down. He can lob or try to pass or try to hammer the ball through the net men but he must try for every ball.

ROD. What's good about this drill is that it forces you to hit while you're moving. One mistake a lot of players make when they're practicing is that they stand in one place. That's one of the problems with hitting the ball off a backboard. When you're in an actual game, you have to move around a lot. You don't have the time to make all those careful preparations.

ROY. The drill also gives the players at the net a lot of practice with volleys and smashes and moving back for lobs. If you work this drill right, you do more scrambling and running in an hour than you would do in three hours of doubles.

The poor bloke at the baseline has to chase down all the balls the net men hit to him.

Bill Robinson salvages respect after early failure

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor
CLEARWATER, Fla. — (NEA) — What a day that was! He was in the Opening Day starting outfield lineup for the New York Yankees. In the Washington stands were 50,000 fans including the President of the United States, Lyndon Johnson. This was in 1967 and he was a mere rookie. But some rookie!

Bill Robinson over that winter had been traded from the Atlanta Braves (who had bought his contract after a fine minor league career) to the Yankees for veteran star third baseman Cleto Boyer. A rookie for a veteran?

Robinson's credentials, however, came bearing the baseball equivalent of gold, incense and myrrh. He had received a scouting report by the Yankees of all A's. He could, the report said, hit with power, hit for average and had tremendous speed, throwing ability and poise.

And on this Opening Day, all he did was hit a homer his first time at bat, and later doubled, as the Yankees won. He was mobbed by reporters after the game. He was the black Mantle, the black Ruth, the black Messiah.

BILL ROBINSON

Then the Yankee Stadium roof caved in on him.

For much of Robinson's next three years as a Yankee he was booed and ridiculed. "Robinson, you stink," was as common a cry in the stands as "Hey, beer here." His car was sometimes stoned. And all that was normally around his locker were the religious pictures and medals he hung up to help his Catholic prayers for success on the field to live up to his potential, to measure up to his boyhood dreams.

"Somewhere along the line," Robinson says today, "I got bogged down. I guess I tried too hard. Ever since that first game I hoped to hit every pitch over the fence. And I didn't hit many."

"I wanted to prove that it was no mistake, trading a player like Boyer for me — who at first they called 'Bill Who?'"

Robinson is still in the major leagues, at age 31, after bouncing up and down from the minor leagues and was traded just before the start of this season from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh.

He had his finest year in the big leagues in 1973, hitting .288, with 25 homers and 65 runs batted in. But 1974 was, well, even the partisan Phillies' press brochure calls it "disappointing." Robinson played in only 100 of the 162 games and hit .236 with five homers and 29 RBIs.

Knicks will challenge NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knicks appeared ready today to challenge the National Basketball Association's constitution and by-laws after signing American Basketball Association superstar George McGinnis to a six-year, $2 million-plus contract.

The signing was carried out despite the fact that the Knicks don't happen to own McGinnis' NBA rights. And that little technicality is likely to lead to a legal battle with the NBA's Philadelphia 76ers, who drafted McGinnis two years ago.

"This step is a flagrant violation of our NBA draft rights and the constitution and bylaws of the NBA," said Irv Kosloff, president of the 76ers.

"There's no way we'll let them get away with this," added Philadelphia General Manager Pat Williams.

The Knicks, however, think they will. They feel McGinnis is a special case—a free agent whose NBA rights had been held by Philadelphia for two years, long enough to give that club ample opportunity to sign him.

But attorneys for the New York club were evasive when asked to explain why New York could sign him without first securing him from the club that drafted him.

"We'll have an answer for that in court at the proper time," said attorney Jay Topkis.

At issue here is the right of a player to negotiate with the club of his choice rather than the one owning his draft rights. Four years ago, the club of McGinnis' choice was the Indiana Pacers of the American Basketball Association. He left Indiana University after his sophomore season to turn pro with the Pacers.

McGinnis signed a three-year contract at that time. Two years later, when his college class graduated, he became eligible for the NBA draft and was selected by Philadelphia. That was two years ago.

When his first Pacers' contract expired, McGinnis, who had developed into an ABA superstar, indicated a desire to play in the NBA, but with New York, not Philadelphia.

"We struck a deal with the 76ers giving us the right to negotiate with George," said Mike Burke, president of the Knicks. That would reportedly have sent Earl Monroe and two other players to the 76ers.

For a time, it seemed that McGinnis was bound for Madison Square Garden. But he changed his mind at the last minute and signed a new two-year agreement with the Pacers. That contract included an option to leave Indiana after one year if McGinnis decided he no longer wanted to remain with the club.
